The Wallpaper* 150

THE WALLPAPER* 150

The 150 movers, shakers and makers that have rocked the Wallpaper* world in the last 15 years

So here they are, the 150 people who have come into all our lives over the 15 years since the first Wallpaper* issue and made something that matters to us a better, more interesting or more fun. But, in a Wallpaper* way, these aren't just our choices. Through the wisdom of the Transformers, we did a number of our suggestions out there to provide debate and input into our great name-shaking project. And you came back in numbers and with a lot to say. So this list, as we like to think, the collective top 150 honorees of the big, happy Wallpaper* family.

It's also worth mentioning, before you get upset the Great Race designer went left? In the list, there were a couple of crucial criteria used when putting this list together. For one thing, our 150ers had to be still around. And that creative flowering has to have happened in the last 15 years (sorry, Mr. Gehry, but you were a legend long before 1995).

It's been a close call in many cases, and while our panel and researchers have been focused in their deliberations, we'd like to throw it back to you one last time. If you still think there's someone unmeasurably omitted, let us know via Twitter, and we'll ensure the most nominated consider the Wallpaper* 150.

Activate through graphics, begin the parade.

YES REIM
Putting the hammer into the industrial and his connection into his projects makes the 150ers designer ahead of his time.

BERNARDES + JACOBSEN
Offering their own take on its action materialism, things BernarDES and Paulo Jacobsen provide architects perfectly suited to its surroundings.

BLAIR SOUTHWELL
Henry Bruns and Graham Southwell started super gallery research in 1998, used it to E.C.C. Now set to conquer the world with new ventures, Bruns Southwell.
